States' Rights and the Economy

Chapter 10

Section 5

The Bank War

•	The 2 nd Bank of the US was loved by
	 Helped businesses with 	-
	Safe place for to keep	ep money
	Printed money was Increased faith in all banks
•	Many southern and western farmers and m like the bank	erchants d	id not
	 Restricted loans given out by BofUS feared state banks gave out too much r 		-2 nd
	 Made it hard for farmers and merchants to
	 They blamed 2nd BofUS for economic crisis of 	1819

The Bank War

•	Most powerful hater of Bank
	 Called it the "monster"
	 Thought it benefited the at expense of Especially disliked, bank president
	Biddle came for wealthy family in PhillySkilled at doing "bank favors" for
	 In 1832, 4 years before charter ended, Biddle went ahead and got charter renewed without Jackson knowing
	 Jackson it- became a huge issue in the election v. Henry Clay 1836, 2nd Bank of US expired, no new bank

- Under Van Buren, economic crisis hit- with no Bank of US, there was little he could do

The Question of States' Rights

- been a debate amongst Americans since 1787
- Constitution gives federal gov't a lot of power...but it also includes
 - Along with ______, thisallows for debate
 - VA and KY resolutions
 - Hartford Convention
 - Alien Sedition

The Nullification Crisis

- Tariff of 1828- put a tax on manufactured goods
- Helped north and some in west...south felt they had to pay more and support an unfair law
- John C Calhoun (now VP), said states had the right of

The Nullification Crisis

- Arguments For Nullification
 - To south- this was part of a larger issue:
 - If federal gov't could force south to obey a law it thought was unconstitutional, could it force them to
 - Calhoun based his idea on how he felt the Union was formed- as an agreement between
 - States gave the federal gov't its power- so if the states agreed to nullify a federal law, they should have the right to do so

The Nullification Crisis

- Arguments Against Nullification
 - Best argument against from (MA)
 - Said the federal government was formed by ______, not the states
 - Jackson vehemently wanted to
 - Calhoun in a banquet during a speech
 - Calhoun retorted, _____ are more important
 - The line had been drawn- the south felt their rights were more important than preserving the Union

South Carolina Threatens to Secede

- In 1832, the federal government passed another tariff
 - It lowered some tariffs but raised them on iron and textiles
- SC called a state convention- voted to
 - Said the tariffs of 1828 and 1832 did not apply in SC
 - Threatened that if federal gov't tried to force them to obey it, they would

South Carolina Threatens to Secede

- Jackson was cheesed- said in the Proclamation to the People of South Carolina:
 - "...the Union could no be dissolved. Disunion by armed force is treason."
 - High tension in DC- Calhoun _____ as VP
- 1833- Jackson asked Congress if he could use to collect tariff in SC if necessary
 - He also agreed to support a bill that would lower tariffs
 - Congress passed both
- No other states supported SC- it repealed its tariff nullification policy
- Debate would continue until 1861

The End of the Jackson Era

•	Jackson	had	hoped
---	---------	-----	-------

_____ would be his successor

- Was Secretary of State then his VP after Calhoun resigned
- Election of 1836- _____ ran 3 candidates in hopes of taking election to house
- Didn't work- van Buren won majority of popular and electoral votes

The End of the Jackson Era

- The Panic of 1837
 - Van Buren took office at a bad time for economy
 - ______ economy had slowed
 - British bought less
 - Caused prices to ______- many defaulted on loans
 - Caused banks to go ______
 - Economic slump lasted 6 years- ruined van Buren's presidency

The Election of 1840

- Martin Van Buren (Democrat) vs. William Henry Harrison (Whig)
 - Whigs held parades, barbeques, and parties- tried to gain support of
 - Portrayed Harrison as a "man of the people"- that he would feel at home in a simple log cabin
 - "log cabin" campaign helped Harrison win easily over van Buren
 - Age of Jackson now over